What is TICTeC?

Since 2015, mySociety has convened hundreds of people from across the globe as part of its Impacts of Civic Technology (TICTeC) conference and events programme.

TICTeC brings together an international mix of researchers, practitioners, policymakers, philanthropists and tech giants to examine how digital technology is shaping society.

TICTeC’s Theory of Change

1. Evidence-based civic tech research and real life experiences are shared in-depth in person
2. Better understanding and evaluation of civic tech tools
3. A knowledge base and community support network to draw from when developing civic tech tools
4. More effective civic tech tools used by more citizens to do things like hold power to account
5. Better outcomes for society all round
6. More engagement opportunities

“TICTeC 2018 was one of the most diverse conferences I’ve ever attended, not just in terms of gender, but also in terms of representativeness of regions of the world, plus a great variety of professional profiles and backgrounds.”

“At conferences on open data and civic tech you often hear people discuss ‘This is the project I’m working on’ - I think TICTeC stands out as an example where it’s about the lessons learnt rather than the activities. The focus on ‘This is the impact we’ve uncovered by doing this project’ sets TICTeC apart.”
TICTeC Plans for 2021
TICTeC Show and Tells
Spring, 2021

- A series of three, hour-long virtual ‘Show and Tell’ events
- Each event will feature five 7-minute presentations on a topic related to civic technology and its impacts, followed by Q&A and discussion
- The events will take place in March, April and May 2021
- An open Call for Proposals will be launched in January 2021
TICTeC Show and Tells: Topics

Via our open Call for Proposals, interested parties can submit proposals related to the impacts of digital technologies in these areas:
